PREPARING FOR THE MUSIC HISTORY DIAGNOSTIC EXAM

The Music History Diagnostic Exam is given, as needed, at the beginning of the Fall and Spring semesters. The exam consists of 120 multiple-choice questions: 20 questions each on the Medieval-Renaissance era, the Baroque and Classical periods, the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and American vernacular music (i.e., folk, jazz, and popular music).

To prepare for this exam, study your notes and the textbook(s) from your undergraduate music history courses. Here at Middle Tennessee State University we use the Grout/Palisca/Burkholder A History of Western Music and the accompanying Norton Anthology of Western Music, and the questions probably reflect that influence. You may find, however, that Mark Evan Bonds's book A History of Music in Western Culture or K. Marie Stolba's book The Development of Western Music: A History and their accompanying anthologies and recordings also are sufficient. For the American vernacular portion of the exam I suggest one of several general texts on American music: H. Wiley Hitchcock's Music in the United States: A Historical Introduction; Richard Crawford's An Introduction to America's Music; Charles Hamm's Music in the New World; or Candelaria and Kingman's American Music: A Panorama. In all cases you should try, when possible, to use the most recent editions.

In order to pass the exam, you will need to achieve a 70% on each portion. For those parts that you do not pass, you will be required to register for a 1-3 credit section of MUHL 5020 "Music History Survey," a self-study, online music history course (1-2 failed sections require 1 credit, 3-4 sections require 2 credits and 5-6 sections require 3 credits).
