George Washington University Department of Philosophy

The George Washington University Department of Philosophy has recently launched a terminal M.A. in Philosophy. This newer graduate program complements our longstanding and highly successful M.A. in Philosophy and Social Policy.

The GW Department of Philosophy's pluralist faculty spans both analytic and continental traditions, and the new M.A. in Philosophy will provide preparation for students who intend to go on to philosophy doctoral programs. The MA in Philosophy and Social Policy is a highly interdisciplinary program that offers students focused coursework in philosophy while helping them learn to apply insights from philosophy to problems of public policy.

Every applicant will be considered for a tuition award that will partly offset the costs of attendance. The department also has some need for graduate assistants, who receive a per semester salary and provide limited grading/instructional support for undergraduate philosophy classes. Applications for Fall 2019 will be considered on a rolling basis, with financial aid priority given to those received by February 1, 2019. For more information, visit http://philosophy.columbian.gwu.edu/graduate or e-mail Dr. Laura Papish, Director of Graduate Studies, at laurapapish@gwu.edu.